FORUM for alternative belfast
disconnected city

created mainly by infrastructure
Ron Wiener lived in Belfast in the early 70s. He documented the redevelopment of the Shankill as a result of the BUM (Belfast Urban Motorway / Westlink). Never has the humour of an acronym belied the pain of its implementation.

In 1975 he published the provocatively titled The Rape and Plunder of the Shankill which remains a key text to understanding the city to this day.

Ron will show slides from his time here and an open discussion panel will follow.

Light snacks served.

SPONSORED BY

HACKETT HALL TOOD ARCHITECTS

City of Quartz

Mike Davis

Mike Davis

MIKE DAVIS

WITH PHOTOGRAPHS BY ROBERT WORMAN

EAVING THE

POWER

OF

Los Angeles

Region shared spaces?
LIFE BETWEEN BUILDINGS
Using Public Space

Jan Gehl

ARKITEKTENS FORLAG
the strategic problem for North Belfast
Making ‘Six Links’
to stitch the city together again
And renew secondary routes
a city repair...
A strategic plan that creates value where little currently exists
Delivery model (through fragmented governance)

Social Model